

Annual Wants Fitting Name For Mascot

A duck-naming contest is being initiated by the Annual to find a suitable title for the "Old McGill '51" mascot. The contest starts today and will last until Wednesday, November 8th, and all entries are to be given to George in the Union Tuck Shop addressed to the Annual.

Prize for the winning name is a free Annual, and the judges for the contest will be the Annual Board. All McGill students are eligible to enter the contest, but only one entry per person will be accepted. Should the winner already have bought his Annual, his money will be refunded.

The duck in question is a black and white male who has already appeared on the campus, at the Shrine, and in the Union. He was bought in the neighborhood of the old Roxy Theatre for the staggering sum of $2.75. His next public appearance will be at the McGill-Toronto football game.

Arena to Do 3 Workshop Productions

By FRANK HOLLAND
Three one-act plays will be produced by the Arena Wing Workshop of the Players Club, in the Union during the latter part of January. It was announced last night by Elohim Raman, Chairman of the Arena Wing.

These plays are to be: "The Bear, and the Proposal," both by Chekhov; and "Death Comes to My Friends" by Carl Dollenman. They will be produced on a small budget and with a minimum of props and costumes. Participation in these productions will be open to members of the Players Club, and anyone else interested in Arena Theatre. Raman stated that the final tryouts will be held on Thursday night at 8.00 p.m. in the Union Club Room, and definite casting will be decided upon at that time.

Directors of these plays are Jim Kirk, George Loukides, and Elohim Raman. Norma Springfield, who directed "Ghosts" last year will supervise these productions and seek talent for the main Arena production of the year.

"We are putting on workshop productions this year," Raman told The Daily last night, "in order to have a training ground for those who have not had experience in arena theatre before, and to build up a cast of competent actors for big arena productions."

Principle of Increase O.K.'d at Winnipeg

Winnipeg—(CUP)—Principle of an increase in affiliation fees to the National Federation of University Students has been passed unanimously by students' council here.

Actual amount of the increase in fees, which now stand at six cents per student, will not be set until the budget is brought down. An attempt will be made to meet the twenty cent level set by the NFCUS conference, it is reported.

Pathogenesis Is Duff's Topic

"The Pathogenesis of Atherosclerosis" will be the subject of the Thirteenth Annual Louis Gross Memorial Lecture to be delivered tonight at 8.30 p.m. in the Jewish General Hospital. Dr. G. Lyman Duff, Sirachona Professor of Medicine, Director of the Pathological Institute, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, will be the speaker. The lecture is under the auspices of The Montreal Clinical Society.

A and S Election Dates Announced

Nominations Close on Monday For Sixteen Class Positions

Elections are in the offing again. Nominations are called today for positions on the Arts and Science class executive, by Chief Returning Officer Greg Friend. Nominations will close on October 30th, while the elections will be held on November 8th.

The offices open for election are: President, Vice-president, Treasurer and Secretary for each of the four undergraduate years of Arts and Science. Nominations shall come from the members of the society who are registered in the same year as that in which a position is being contested. Nomination sheets shall be signed by the candidate and be accompanied by a minimum of ten (10) signatures. These sheets should be left with George in the Tuck Shop or janitor in the Arts Building.

The duties of the class executives include all those matters concerning their own years. Also all presidents are members of the A & S House Committee, the functions of which are to see to the maintenance and improvement of the various Arts and Science buildings. Each executive will be required to help organize one of the informal dances during the year, in co-operation with the social committee.

The president of the graduating class is chairman of the House Committee. He remains as President for the class of '51 in all class reunions and affairs concerning the class after graduation.

Each class executive is allotted a maximum budget of seventy-five dollars. With this budget they can hold class parties during the year, in order to foster class spirit and friendliness. The class executive may also be called upon from time to time to organize their various classes for such things as charities. Every student wishing to vote in the coming election will first be asked for an A & S U.S. membership card. Any students who have not as yet registered with the society, including Fine Arts, may do so during the next week at the Arts and Science office in the basement of the Union at 12 o'clock.

UBC Council Refuses Raise in NFCUS Fees

Vancouver.—(CUP)—Student Council at the University of British Columbia has refused to boost its fees from 12 to 20 cents to the National Federation of University Students simply because "there isn't enough money."

UBC currently pays 12 cents per student to the NFCUS coffers. At NFCUS's September conference at Laval, which recommended the 20 cent levy, UBC bargained for a straight fee of 12 cents, but it was not accepted.

But the council indicated it would be willing to pay the remainder at the end of the year if finances allowed it.

France Withdraws From IUS

France's university students have decided to withdraw from the International Union of Students. Decision of the national union of French university students follows failure of the IUS to invite Yugoslavian students to its conference this summer in Prague. The French, along with the British had charged that IUS had unjustly expelled the Yugoslavs from the union.

In withdrawing, the French charged that IUS was nothing more than an agency of the conformism. The British National Union of Students is expected to withdraw from IUS before Christmas, when a meeting of student unions of the western world will be held in Scandinavia.

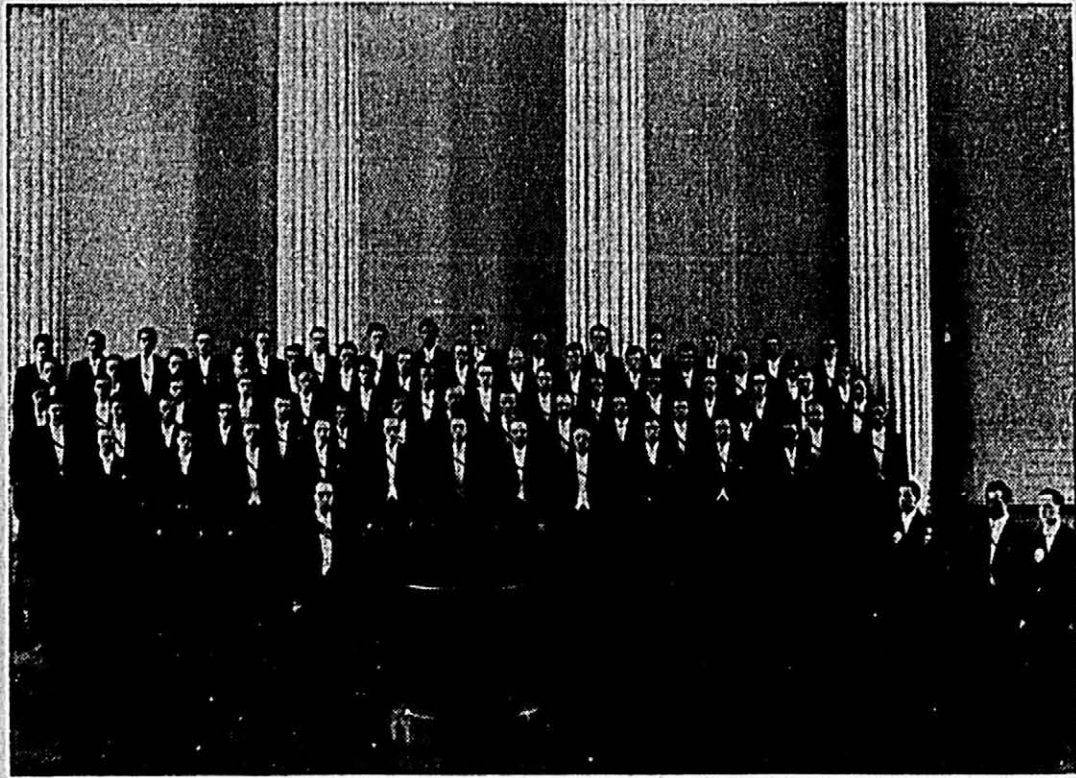

Canadian students have never been members of the IUS, but the question of affiliation has been brooded about on Canadian camps since 1946. Canada will probably be represented at the Scandinavian meeting.

Bovey Shield Competitions Open Debating Programme

Arrangements for the annual competition for the Bovey Shield have been completed. It was announced last night by Dan Kingston, chairman of the Bovey Shield debating competition.

The Bovey Shield was presented to the McGill Debating Union by Colonel Wilfred Bovey for annual competition and students, male or female, who are attending university for the first time are eligible. The competition is designed mainly for freshmen.

The debating topic will be announced on Thursday and the Shield competitions will take place on Thursday beginning at twelve noon. From 12 until 1.15 p.m. anybody may come in and enlist as a speaker, and after that hour they

Brewers Breed Beardless Barley

The role of Macdonald College in the production of improved grains was highlighted in a ceremony which took place at the college today.

The Barley Improvement Institute, which is sponsored by the malted and brewing interests of Canada, presented a cheque for $3,500 in support of research on barley. Included is the award of a scholarship grant to research student Harold Klinck, a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, now working in the department of agronomy at the college. The ceremony of presentation was arranged by the Quebec Brewers' Association.

Research work carried out on barley under the direction of Emile Ar Lods, associate professor in charge of grain crop research and begun as early as 1922, resulted in the production of a new variety of barley named "Montcalm." After extensive trials this barley was generally released in 1947. Now millions of this variety are produced in Western Canada.

Work is being continued in the direction of producing a beardless variety of barley, and in breeding to secure resistance to mildew and smut, as well as strengthening the straw.

This is but one of the many contributions which research at the college has made to the progress and welfare of Canadian farmers and industry.

Qualified university undergraduates now entering their final year may be commissioned in the regular forces, Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of national defence, announced yesterday. This plan will enable students to receive training as officers in the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Army, and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A similar plan, applicable only to veterans of the recent war, has been successfully carried out during the past three years. Now it is to be extended to take in non-veterans.

"Since the war," said Mr. Claxton, "we have made important progress in the training of officers in recognition that this is the key to efficient services."

In addition to the Canadian Service Colleges at Kingston, Ont., and Royal Roads, B.C., for training officers for all three services, every university has co-operated in arrangements whereby undergraduates take on additional work during the college terms and spend their full summers at sea, in camp or at air stations. In this way, at the end of their undergraduate career, they have a degree and the equivalent of a full year's practical work with one of the services. During their full-time service they receive the pay of an acting 2nd lieutenant, or equivalent rank in the Navy and Air Force, or $153 a month.

"Altogether," the Minister stated, "we have more than 6,000 men training under one or other of these

Funds to Aid Student Town Of Helsinki

By BILL LAWAND

The Finnish Polytech Choir, consisting of sixty students from the Polytechnical Institute of Finland arrives in Montreal today for their first Canadian concert performance this evening at 8.15 p.m. in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

Heralded by reports from Boston, New York, and Washington, which have been described as "Most favorable," the Polytech Choir will feature a programme of songs by noted Finnish composers, including Sibelius and Palmgren. Highlighting the evening's programme will be two songs of Sibelius, "Finlandia" and "Song of My Heart" and a lullaby by Palmgren entitled "Cradle Song." In all the Finnish Choir will sing about twenty songs, all of which have been composed by Finnish musicians.

Purpose
The purpose of the Polytech Choir's tour of the United States and Canada is to raise funds for the construction of a "Student Town", consisting of dormitories and other buildings, for the students of the University of Helsinki. It is hoped to complete the project by the summer of 1952 in order to provide accommodations for the hundreds of athletes coming to arrangements. In addition, at the end of the war, we took into the armed forces, a number of veteran officers with excellent records and continued them at the university. This provided us with a sure source of first class officers at relatively little expense.

"Now that practically all veterans have completed their courses this plan no longer has application to them, but the experience gained has been so satisfactory that we have decided to extend the arrangements to undergraduates at the beginning of their final year."

Undergraduate students who enter their final year during the current college term in good standing and who have completed last summer's training with the Navy, Army or Air Force, and who have other qualifications, may enter the regular forces, receiving the pay of rank. Graduates doing post-graduate work are also eligible. On completion of their courses next May they will continue in the regular forces for a period of not less than four years on a permanent career basis.

Student Labour To Pick Leaders

An election meeting of the Student Labor Club will be held in the Union Board room at 1 p.m. today. It was announced last night by Abe Cohen, last year's president, for the retiring executive.

Officers to be contested are those of president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and publicity director.

Any student is eligible to vote. Cohen said, but only members of the club may be put up for an executive position.

Announcement of the elections had been made by the retiring executive in time to appear in yesterday's Daily, but due to a technical mishap, the announcement did not appear.

Helsinki from all over the world to participate in the Olympic Games.

The entire stay of the Choir in Montreal will be taken care of by functions of one sort or another under the auspices of various city groups. Arriving at Central Station at 9.15 a.m. (E.D.T.), the Choir will be whisked off to the headquarters of the Montreal Finnish Society for breakfast. Following breakfast the group will be brought to the McGill Union from where they will be billeted at several campus fraternities, at the S.C.M., and at various private homes.

A few selected members of the Choir including the three soloists will then pay a visit to City Hall where together with Urho Tuovola, Finnish minister to Canada, Dr. L. C. Tombs, Finnish consul in Montreal, and Mr. T. Norrell, Manager of the Finnish exporting firm, Fennia Limited, they will be the guests of Mayor Camillien Houde.

MONTREAL TOUR
A tour of Montreal has been arranged for the Finnish students, beginning at 12.30. The Provincial Transport Company will provide buses for the excursions to the University of Montreal and The Imperial Tobacco Company.

Following the tour a cocktail party and banquet will be given in honour of the Choir by the S.E.C. in the McGill Union. Dr. F. Cyril James and Mr. Tuovola will address the group during the banquet. Boris (Continued on Page 4)

Policy Rider on Increase Motion

Cease Plugging for Federal Aid Or Will Not Raise Fees

Student Council at the University of Montreal Monday voted to raise the NFCUS fees there as is being requested at all Canadian Universities, but tagged a rider on its motion that may "cause an irrevocable split between the English and French speaking students of Canada."

The proposed fee raise was passed on condition that NFCUS cease plugging for federal aid to education.

This motion followed an earlier one in which by an 8 to 6 vote (with two abstentions) the students declared themselves against the principle of federal aid to higher education.

In a front page story yesterday the nationalist French daily Le Devoir said that NFCUS (the National Federation of Canadian University Students) had decided on the fee raise "to cover the cost of a vigorous propaganda campaign" in favor of federal aid.

Boris Gardavsky, president of the McGill students' society, Len Harbour, chairman of the McGill NFCUS committee, and Dennis Lazure, president of the U. of M. student society were all quick to deny this last night.

Main reason for the proposed jump in NFCUS fees was to allow the organization to set up a national office and hire a national secretary. NFCUS represents some 65,000 Canadian University students.

In an interview with The Daily last night, Lazure said many students at the U. of M. thought with Le Devoir that the fee increase would mean a stepped up campaign for federal aid.

"Personally, I regret the decision taken by the U. of M. regarding NFCUS policy," Lazure said. "I am sincerely convinced that Canadian University students can get federal aid without having provincial rights and autonomy abridged."

"I feel that the U. of M. representatives voting this way were giving a sort of vote of non-confidence to their leaders and to NFCUS leaders."

Lazure said he was communicating the Council's decision to NFCUS president Art Muaro, of the University of Manitoba. A reply from NFCUS is expected tomorrow.

Fear that the U. of M. move might cause "an irrevocable split between English and French speaking students of Canada" was expressed by Boris Gardavsky last night.

"It is sincerely hoped that this will never occur and that the recommendations of the Montreal students' society will be brought up in the normal manner at the next NFCUS conference," he said.

"The fee increase was proposed to strengthen the whole program of NFCUS to better serve Canadian students. There was no question of politics being connected with it."

"If student groups of various universities are opposed to certain aspects of the NFCUS program, then they should raise their objections through the proper channels, namely, the annual national conference. To use the fee increase as a lever to force upon the Canadian students the wishes of a single group is definitely to be deprecated," Gardavsky said.

McGill was the first campus to ratify the fee raise. Former rate was six cents per student.

Following is a statement made in response to the Le Devoir article by Len Harbour, local NFCUS chairman and Quebec regional vice-president:

Text of the U. of M. motion was: "That the U. of M. raise its contribution to NFCUS from six to twenty cents on condition that this money will not be given to NFCUS unless it announces officially and publicly that it is stopping immediately to ask for federal aid for education and that it withdraw from circulation all its documents asking for federal aid to education."

In yesterday's edition of Le Devoir a front page story accused the National Federation of Canadian University Students of Undertaking a Campaign to obtain federal taxes for University education. Furthermore the article stated that the NFCUS had decided to raise the fee of the federated Universities in order to defray the cost of a vigorous campaign of propaganda to this end.

This is wrong. At its National Convention in Quebec last September the NFCUS expressed the intention to establish a permanent national office. The fee raise was to be used in the cost of hiring an executive secretary and expenses of this office. The office would not be used for anything but the usual business affairs of a National Student Organization.

With regard to Federal aid for education, NFCUS presented a brief to the Massey Commission on Arts, Letters, and Sciences. This brief asked for a liberal grant of 10,000 $300 scholarships for University students. No tax was urged. No propaganda was urged. The Union (Continued on Page 4)

Col. Maclean Wills College $100,000

London, Ont.—(CUP)—A $100,000 bequest has been made to the University of Western Ontario by the late John Bayne Maclean which will enable the University to continue its work in preventive medicine.

"Colonel Maclean must have been aware of the implications and value of preventive medicine," said G. E. Hall, President of the University. "His bequest has made it possible for us to carry on the work. He had longstanding interest in our university, and had even supplied Gordon Cullen, famous landscape architect, to plan our beautiful grounds."

"Some years ago," Dr. Hall added, "John Bayne Maclean was made an honorary graduate of Western."

Dr. Hall also expressed gratitude for another sum of money left by Colonel Maclean for bursaries for students from Wellington County, where Maclean grew up as the son of a small-town Presbyterian minister.

Swedish Botany Research Discussed by Dr. Roscoe

By SHEILA HORN

The level of botanical research which stretches out to agriculture, forestry, and medicine in Sweden was the main point discussed by Dr. Roscoe, warden of R.V.C., Professor of Botany at McGill, in her talk to the McGill Alumnae Society last night.

Sixty Thousand Others Wait

The University of Montreal Student Council took an impossible stand on Monday night when they gave conditional ratification to raising National Federation of Canadian University Student fees on its campus. The NFCUS, of course, will never be able to accept its recommendation when they come as a threat.

The decision as to whether or not the requested fee raise can be granted is one which should be made on financial grounds alone. That is what is happening at every other Canadian campus. Toronto, and McGill have declared themselves in favor of the raise because they can afford it. The University of British Columbia and Queen's University have turned it down because they cannot. The question of NFCUS policy has not motivated their deliberations.

If the University of Montreal students find they cannot agree with the declared policy of NFCUS to campaign for federal aid to education, the proper place to present their objections is at the annual conference, when student leaders from all across the country decide on NFCUS.

There could be no more effective way to sabotage Canadian students' national union than for each member Students' Society to qualify its membership with such provisos as the one demanded by the University of Montreal. Sectionalism and provincialism is an ever-present danger. It has no place in NFCUS.

It is to be hoped that the students of the University of Montreal will reconsider their decision. There is no doubt that NFCUS national executive will inform them that their position is unacceptable. They could then either refuse the NFCUS ruling, which might mean their withdrawal from NFCUS, or accept the position that policy cannot be forced upon NFCUS in this way. Sixty thousand other Canadian students will await their decision. — JMS.

Letters to The Editor

The Will of the Students?

Dear Sir:

Last Wednesday a meeting of the Student Executive Council was held, at which the question was discussed of ratifying the constitutions of three campus organizations, the McGill Students' Peace Council, the World Federalist Association, and the Intercollegiate Zionist Federation. These constitutions were passed by the Constitution Committee, but were not ratified by the S.E.C., on the grounds that their aims were already embodied in the constitutions of political clubs and other organizations on the campus.

If this reasoning were strictly adhered to, there is scarcely a club on the campus which could continue its legal existence. The Science Fiction Society, for example, would have to be banned and its members recruited into the various scientific and literary association already existing. No one advocates this, because there are some people who are interested in science fiction who are not interested in all the activities of the scientific and literary clubs. But there are also many students who are interested in peace, but who are not supporters of all the aims of any of the political clubs. This decision of the S.E.C. is forcing these people to work within the framework of political ideology in which they do not believe, or else to be silent about the issue of peace or war, when their consciences tell them they should speak.

It is plain, then, that the decisions given for the denial of a charter to these three organizations are not valid reasons, and the S.E.C. decision should be reversed immediately.

If Canada is to remain a democratic country, nothing is more obvious than the necessity to practise democracy in our universities. This means that our elected representatives in the S.E.C. must exercise their full responsibility to carry out the will of the students, and not refuse a reasonable request for recognition on unreasonable grounds. Respectfully,

TED BAXTER, Divinity I.

Several points in Reader Baxter's letter need clarification. The World Federalist Association constitution was not rejected, but the matter was tabled pending further study. It was not stated that the aims of the Intercollegiate Zionist Federation were embodied in "the constitutions of political clubs and other organizations." It was stated that the proposed activities of this organization overlapped those of Hillel. It was stated that the proposed aims of the Students' Peace Council were embodied in the constitutions of political clubs and other organizations on the campus. One organization which does not work within the "framework of a political ideology," but which is interested in the question of peace and war, is NFCUS.

Referring to the matter, Boris Gardavsky, president of the Students' Society, said last night: "We, as a body, were never organized to speak on political questions for the student body at large. The constitutions of the Intercollegiate Zionist Federation and the Students' Peace Council embodied political implications which the S.E.C. could not support." — Ed.

Ambitions of the Great Powers

by Paul Harris

This United Nations' week is a time when many of the peoples of the world are being told that the activities of their International Organization have a direct bearing on their daily lives. War or peace, famine or enough to eat, technical knowledge to change natural obstacles into means for providing for the multiplying population of the world, are all problems on which the U.N. focuses its attention. The results of their endeavors, and the work done independently by the member nations, will help to determine whether the present McGill students will be pulverized by atomic bombs, or have the opportunity of leading a life of some satisfaction in a world intent on more peaceful activities.

Whether the United Nations will ever form an independent, sovereign world government, is one question. It is transparent that the direction its efforts take and the means for trying to implement its decisions, are at the present time determined by the member nations, principally the great powers, and particularly the United States.

Americans in Asia

If this brief analysis is correct, it follows that for the peoples of the United Nations to reach an adequate understanding of what this organization means to their livelihood and lives, they must look especially closely at what the United States is doing as a result of its foreign policy. From what motives does it appear to be acting? To what ends are its purposes directed? And how do the people affected in other lands react to their interpretation of U.S. foreign policy?

It is probably true that many Americans believe that by giving economic assistance to Asia, and intervening in cases of aggression, they will alleviate the lot of millions of undernourished and starving Asiatics — at the same time achieving something instrumental for attaining world peace. And some of these men and women will devote their lives to this work. The other side of the story still remains, that millions of the dollars involved have been for bolstering up Chiang Kai-shek, that is to say, providing a valuable source of wealth for the spoils and graft of his corrupt regime. Korea could serve as a lesson to aggressors, but intervention in Kashmir might have done just as well, even though there are not such strategic considerations involved.

Transition in Asia

The countries of Asia themselves are undergoing considerable transitions, which together with the colonial historical background from which they are emerging, and the complexities of the situation itself, make it difficult for them to have one reasonably clear attitude to American policy. Many of these countries would like American economic assistance but, as is the case with India, they are more than cautious about the effect of 'conditions' on their newly won independence. A major question asked is why, if the Amer-

Montreal is to be the scene of the third annual Canadian Ballet Festival during the week of November 20. The Festival to be held at His Majesty's Theatre, will feature 15 Canadian ballet groups, seven of which are from Montreal.

The only out of town group that has been seen here before is the Winnipeg Ballet Company, which achieved recognition for a good performance here two years ago.

The first Ballet Festival, held in Winnipeg in 1948, attracted the patronage of Governor-General and Lady Alexander, and so much public enthusiasm that a Canadian Ballet Association was formed to sponsor an annual Festival.

The purpose of this was to encourage and develop dance groups in Canada, and eventually to open up a professional field for Canadian talent in ballet.

Last year the second annual Festival took place in Toronto, and each of the seven performances was sold out. The Festival this year promises to be even bigger, and will run for eight performances.

This column feels that it is about time Canada took enough interest in native talent to keep it from drifting to greener fields. This annual Festival appears to be creating a place for one of the fine arts in Canada, and deserves praise for its very successful pioneer work along this line.

English Department Production
McGill's Department of English will produce Thornton Wilder's "The Skin Of Our Teeth" in Moyse Hall early in December. The job of staging this play has been given to Alfred J. H. Pullinger, a new member of the English Department.

He has been appointed lecturer at McGill, and is now teaching two University Extension Courses in "Theatre," the first such courses on the extension programme.

A graduate of McGill (B.A.) in 1943, and of Yale (Department of Drama—M.F.A.) in 1950, Mr. Pullinger is at present serving also as Technical Director for the English Department's dramatic productions, a position he formerly held at the University of Saskatchewan.

The Arena Wing of the McGill Players' Club is getting under way already, as it has planned an ambitious programme this year. At the Workshop meeting (meetings are to be held every Tuesday and Thursday) last night, the group began casting for three one-act plays, and all those interested in any aspect of theatre will be welcome at future meetings.

Norma Springford is supervising the Workshop activities, but the one-act plays will be under student direction. The group is also inviting speakers once a month. All this is in preparation for the big Arena Wing production scheduled for next February.

Incidentally, the 75¢ membership fee for the Players' Club is being used to obtain membership in the MRT library, thus giving the club easy access to theatrical material.

Canadian Revue

The third week of November will see Brian Doherty's all-Canadian musical revue "One For The Road," at His Majesty's Theatre. It includes song and dance numbers from his summer productions at Lake Simcoe, and stars Canadian writing and acting talent.

John Pratt will be starred in this performance, and the supporting cast includes Don Wolvin (who contributed to the success of McGill's Red and White Revue last year), Barbara Hamilton, Charles Baldour, and Betty Carr.

The Daily Meets

The Founders of the Minute Opera

By Gilles Bisailon

Last week, I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Gilles Potvin and Mr. Noel Gauvin of Radio Canada, the two men who last year launched an opera company in Montreal. I found them very optimistic about the future of the Minute Opera. Mr. Potvin expressed his confidence in the public, judging by their past appreciation of his company. He explained that his group of young Canadians work on a co-operative basis, and are very eager to play again a highly entertaining production. "They have been practising every night for a month," he said with pride. Mr. Gauvin continuing told me that all operas are sung in English or in French in order to give the audience a better understanding of the performance. "Our achievement depends not so much on our repertory as on our idea of staging work suitable to a small theatre," he remarked, "and we hope that our company will remain permanent and increase in number. He added that they had been invited to sing on CBC Wednesday night, November 8th.

Opera Can Be Modern

He went on to explain that this week's production will include a revival of Darius Milhaud's "Le Pauvre Matelot," and Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Old Maid And The Thief." This Canadian premiere is a satirical work, witty, with happy and original melodies. Menotti, who possesses a very original style, wants to prove that opera can be modern. He believes that music enriches a drama and reaches the audience when word alone might fail, and that the appeal of any stage piece must be to the heart.

MR. GILLES POTVIN, one of the founders of the minute opera.

His tunes and harmonies are used always for the purpose of intensifying an emotional or poetic idea. Menotti's operas are small scale, intimate work that call for psychological subtlety rather than the old fashioned machinery of pomp which most people associate with the idea of opera.

This was indeed a very interesting interview. I felt impressed with the work already accomplished, and I feel assured that success will meet with their expectation.

This production will run at Les Compagnons Theatre, starting tonight for five nights. McGill students wishing to attend this coming event can avail themselves of tickets at reduced price by presenting their identification card at the theatre box-office.

A man waiting. A man thinking. A man fused into one, the present. So waiting for the future and thinking of the present. Pondering life conveyed through the senses, the senses which are entrances to the soul through which messages wake him, stir him, lift him, and release him.

What did his present consist of? The man closed his eyes, blocking this sense to further messages, further disturbing sensations which might add to those he had received through this channel. He swallowed and thought of taste. Now Touch? He pressed the palms of his hands to his rough jacket. This then was the present. The tweed jacket, warm wind and darkness made up his present. Above all darkness.

And inside? Inside were torturing memories, tangled pathways and tasteless impressions. Yet these belonged to the past. Bitter hopes and pessimism were here, too, part of the future. Inside, future and Then he saw himself as others must see him. An ordinary man. Not a child excused for all irregular actions. Not an impassioned actor applauded for dramaticism. A man, presumably steady, ordinary, average.

Spotlight on Sport

By Bob Bornstein

Those students not too busy studying and who have time to glance at the sport page once in a while, may have noticed that the Redmen are perched high atop the College Union football standings with 3 wins and 0 losses while Western Toronto and Queen's are tied with 1 win and 2 losses apiece. This situation might cause some observers to believe that the Redmen are a shoo-in for the title.

Now undoubtedly McGill is in the driver's seat with such a lead and the season half over. But there is a rule, familiar to most football fans, that could change things considerably. The rule states that should the second place team beat the first place team at least once during the course of the schedule, then a play-off is necessitated despite the fact that one finishes ahead in points at the conclusion of the six game campaign.

Right now Western Mustangs pose the number one threat to McGill's chances. Asserting themselves in a mighty display of power against the woefully weak and injury-ridden Blues at Toronto last week, the Mustangs have demonstrated they are far from dead and will be a force to be reckoned with. Should they continue their march and find themselves in second place when they meet the Redmen in the final game of the year in London, all the Westerners would have to do to force a play-off is win that game.

However, there has been a slight change in this ruling which was put into effect due to the fact that the schedule is such a brief one. Whereas the play-off game was always played on neutral grounds in the past, the rule has been altered allowing the team ending up first to have the contest in its home stadium. This is a great improvement over the previous ruling which provided absolutely no advantage for the team winding up on top.

There doesn't seem to be much chance of this taking place, however, the way the Redmen are going. Obeck's juggernaut shows no signs of faltering and seems well on the way to an undefeated season. Should this happen there would be no need for a post-season play-off. Last year fans will recall that the Redmen finished first, but having lost the opening game of the year to second place Western, were forced to meet the Mustangs in a play-off at Toronto. Western won 12-9 and right now they're still the champions.

Sportshots

The McGill band gave its finest performance in years in the intermission of the Queen's game. Next season the Red muskies will have brand new uniforms to go with their outstanding renditions and formations. . . . Pistol Pete Robinson has been Obeck's most consistent ground-gainer for the past two seasons. The Red coach has expressed his admiration for "hungry" football players more than once, and the way Pete eats up yardage on Saturday afternoons certainly should put him in that category. . . .

Haskell Blauer drives like Murray Hayes used to do. His legs never stop churning even when he's hit. . . . One of the McGill players summed up Harry Irving's 90 yard kick runback this way: "Nobody likes to make the first tackle after the half time intermission. Every one figures some other guy will do it." Looks like all the Queen's players were working on this assumption the way they let Irving waltz down the field. . . . The way the Redmen have smothered each of their opponents so far, many feel that the only college team with a chance to beat them would be their seconds, the McGill Indians who are really loaded with power in every department. . . .

London Free Press columnist Jack Park, Western's number one cheerleader, tub-thumper and fan must be getting more sleep these days now that his darling Mustangs are back on the victory trail. Most people, when they are extremely angry, become purple with rage, but this character is such a fierce

These three boys have had plenty of experience along the ice lanes and are expected to carry the mail for the Red and White this year.

McGill Tracksters Seek Collegiate Championship

By HAROLD BERGEN

The McGill senior track team takes to Molson's Stadium this afternoon in quest of the intercollegiate championship. Facing them in the 43rd renewal of the Senior Intercollegiate Track Championships will be defending champions Toronto Varsity, Western, Queen's, and McMaster.

Comparing the teams entered, it becomes apparent that there will be very keen competition in the short and middle distances. Potent threats for Western are Bill Farlinger, Don Wilson, and Bob Bazzos. Farlinger turned in an impressive performance last year with victories in the high and low hurdles and a record-setting pole vault. Sprinter Wilson placed in the 100 and 220 yard events and Bazzos will compete in the discus, javelin, and hurdles.

Western's annual flashes, Don and Bob MacFarlane will not be here this year. Bob won the 880 last year and placed second in the 440 behind brother Don. Bob Pierce, who won the 100, 220 yards and placed in the broad jump last year, has been sidelined lately with a football injury, and while he is entered in the meet, it is not lover of the Mustangs, that he turns purple and white when riled. . . . Bob Masterson's Varsity Blues are so young that they are known in some circles as the Baby Blue Team. . . . The Redmen will probably take three quarters of the positions on the intercollegiate all-star team chosen at the close of the schedule.

Soccer Men Face Aggies Tonight

By BOB PRINGEL

Bob Wilkinson's soccer boys will be on the warpath again tonight as they take on MacDonald College in an exhibition tilt, at the upper Molson Stadium field. So far this season Wilkinson's crew has played seven exhibition games and sports a healthy average as they have won five, lost one and tied one.

In league play the Redmen have proved their worth, having won their first two games against RMC and Toronto Varsity, last year's title holders.

Soccer, in past years, has proved to be a sore spot on McGill's athletic record as they have not won a championship for ages in this department. With such assets as the high scoring Pedro Machado, and the drive of Ortega and O'Brien on the team this year, Wilkinson has a team that should finally "bring the bacon home" to McGill.

Tonight's game will see the high flying Redmen take on a mystery team from MacDonald College. This tilt will be a hard fought one as the Red and White crew will be out to add another victory to their fast growing list while the Aggies would love nothing better than to hand their ancient foes at McGill a sound shellacking.

Spectators are especially welcome for this game which should be a bang up affair.

The following men are asked to dress tonight at 7:30 p.m. Fainstat, Meeks, Dujon, Carters, Watkins, McPherson, Must, Falconer, J. Nikolaidis, G. Nikolaidis, Ortega, O'Brien, Segall, Robinson, Machado.

If any of these men are unable to dress you are asked to contact Bob Wilkinson, MO: 9181, Local 433, or leave a message.

The above men must have their passports in Mr. Wilkinson's hands by noon today if they plan to make the trip to Williams College this week-end.

TROUBLESOME TRIO

Blues Bewail Bad Breaks Sing Blues

By LEN WISSE

WANTED: Ambitious, able-bodied young men to fill vacancies on senior football team at University of Toronto.

This advertisement might very well appear in the classified section of one of the Queen City's daily newspapers for judging from the list of injuries suffered by the Blues in the game against the Western Mustangs last Saturday the Battle of Waterloo was mere child's play compared to this contest.

On the other hand this 'battle' may very well have been Toronto's Waterloo. Taking on the proportions of a wartime casualty list more than anything else the final count shows that no less than five Blues will be out of action until the last game of the season at the soonest and fully three will play no more football before next season.

In a (if you'll pardon the expression) telegram from The Varsity, daily student publication at Toronto U, comes the following "Communique": John Evans neck injury out at least two games. . . . Jack Richardson knee in cast for two months. . . . Don Longmore shoulder may be ready for last game. . . . Joe Harris concussion out for season stop John MacKenzie knee out for season stop Pete Hymbida's nose may be ready for last game."

By no means a power in intercollegiate football this season the Blues can ill-afford the loss of these men and unless coach Bob Masterson pulls a few rabbits (to make no mention of several HEALTHY linemen and backfielders) out of the proverbial hat things look very black for the Blues.

Ryan Reveals Football Standings

According to the latest statistics from Howie Ryan's office, the Touch Football League standings are as follows. In section one Phys. Ed. squad and the Med. 2 team are tied for first place.

In section two the Med 3 squad holds the lead and in section three there is a three way tie between Phys. Ed. 4, Eng. 5M (Allwells), and Architecture. Eng. 4M (Maulers) lead section four.

Wilmot Pace Setter In League Scoring

With the playing of two week-end games the Senior Intercollegiate Football League marked the half way point of its 1950 schedule as well as its third week of activity.

For the third consecutive week also, a member of the league-leading undefeated McGill Redmen tops the list of individual scorers. This player, Fred Wilmot, star flying wing of the Redmen, chalked up four converts in the team's 25-0 win over the Queen's Gaels to bring his season's total to 18. He presently shares top scorist honors with big Bob McFarlane of the Western Mustangs.

McFarlane, the sparkplug of the Mustangs since 1946 added 10 points to his total in Western's lopsided 41-6 win over Varsity with a touchdown, a single and four converts. The versatile Wilmot's total is now made up of a touchdown, a field goal, two singles as well as eight converts.

Holding down third place in the standings is Harry Irving, also of the Redmen. Irving, who this year has shown as a fine runner as well as top notch quarterback and passer, has amassed 15 points. He added five to his total of last week when he treated 20,000 fans to a sensational 90 yard runback of the second half kickoff in the McGill-Queen's contest.

Rounding up the Big Five of the loop are Ken "Bronco" Wagner and "Pixie" Pete Robinson—fullback and scatback respectively of the Redmen.

Liniment and adhesive tape seems to be the order of the day right now for the teams of the league as they lick their wounds after Saturday's action. The Redmen, however, came out of the contest with no serious injuries and will be at full strength in Kingston. Bob Marshall who suffered a recurrence of a leg injury, is the only casualty, but is expected to be on deck for the return game with the Gaels.

Another returnee to the lineup on Saturday will be quarterback "Shorty" Fairhead. He missed the last game due to a side injury but it has responded to treatment and the diminutive signal caller will be at his regular post.

MWSAA Plans Semi-annual Meeting

A meeting of the M.W.S.A.A. was held in R.V.C. recently. It was revealed that the semi-annual meeting of the M.W.S.A.A. would be held in the Women's Union League on November 2. Tea will be served from 4:00 to 4:30, followed by a meeting at which all the managers will give reports on their clubs.

Margaret Davidson gave a report on the Intercollegiate Tennis tournament which was held at Hamilton last week-end. McGill and Toronto tied for first place with 10 points each, and Queens was second with six points.

Allison Shute announced that the $50 grant given by the M.W.S.A.A. to the M.O.C. will be used for a new girl's room at Shawbridge.

The swimming pool will be finished in two or three weeks according to Miss Bean. There will be 12 hours a week set aside for girls alone and also some co-ed swimming.

plorations. The collections of flora which they sent back formed the basis of future taxonomic studies, and also remained as University collections.

Stockholm, where the conference was held and attended by people from every country in the world, was described by Dr. Roscoe as literally the Venice of the north. The city is about seven hundred years old and has many waterways and thus is known as the city of bridges. It is a city of parks and flowers, a city of museums and libraries. It is a city of people who appreciate beauty and cleanliness and in it there is an absolute lack of evidence of poverty and crime. What impressed Dr. Roscoe greatly was a canal trip to Stockholm where she viewed the harvesting operations and the large crops which were yielded.

At the conference many new developments were discussed, and there was no lack of women scientists who took part in delivering papers. Among them were Mrs. Techolme of Sweden, whose late husband did much work on flora in Egypt, and Dorothy Newton of Canada. Dr. Roscoe felt on looking back at the conference that the level of research of the Swedish botanists, past and present was not matched anywhere.

At the next meeting of the McGill Alumnae Society, which will take place on November 14, Carl the Florist will discuss Floral Arrangements.

A short reception for the members of the Choir and their friends will be given at the Union follow-

As he turned from the shadows, moonlight caught his face, lighting a firmly set face. The man, caught unawares, was surprised by the light unconsciously making him the centre of attention. He stood a moment, dazzled by the brilliance, caught in an unearthly glory then he suddenly straightened his shoulders and jerked his head into the shadows.

An interested watcher would have had time to notice how empty and hungry his expression was, and an observant one would have realized that his tired face and greying hair were signs of trouble, not age.

Shield Contest Revived for Faculty Debates

The Interfaculty Debating Committee has planned an active program for this year. Meetings are to be held weekly during the weeks before Christmas, and in the New Year a revival of Interfaculty Debating Shield contests will take place. Given in 1939, this shield is at present held by the Medical Faculty.

To encourage more active audience participation than there was previously, a completely new method of procedure, based on the English debating style, has been adopted. Any member of the audience may rise at any time during a speech, and upon addressing the chairman as 'Mr. Chairman, Sir,' he may raise a point of information, interrogation, or order.

This means that he may correct any point of fact made by a speaker if he believes it to be false, or he may ask that the speaker make his meaning clear.

There will be a judge chosen for each debate.

The first debate is on Thursday in the clubroom of the Union, and the motion: "Resolved that the Montreal streetcars should be replaced by buses" is being upheld by Arts and Science, and being opposed by the Law Faculty. All are welcome to attend.

ICAO Brings Order Says Booth at U.N. Association

By JIM O'BRIEN

"In five short years, the International Civil Aviation Organization has created order out of chaos in the field of aviation in many parts of the world," said Brig. C. S. Booth at a meeting of the Westmount branch of the United Nations last night in Westmount Junior High School.

Brig. Booth, who is the Canadian representative to the ICAO, went on to say that the ICAO, which is a technical branch of the UN, was fortunate in not having to contend with constant bickering as in the UN, because there were only two iron curtain countries in the assembly, and these did not attend the meetings.

The ICAO, he said, was an organization of governments like the UN, but was more compact. There was an assembly of 58 members, and a council of 21. The members of this council were elected by the assembly for a period of three years.

Canada had been a member of the council, which is the executive committee, for the first three years and was re-elected for the current three.

The most important branch of the ICAO, Brig. Booth continued, was the technical field, which comprised a commission of eight nations including Canada. Certain standards were set which were conformed with by all member countries, to ensure uniformity, safety, and regularity, in aviation the world over. These standards were set in Personnel licensing.

Tickets Still Available For Kingston Train

Tickets for the Queen's-McGill football game are selling satisfactorily, the Central Ticket Office disclosed today. The $1.50 tickets are completely sold out, but there are still a number of tickets which can be purchased at $1.25.

The railway tickets are selling at $6.10. Yesterday it was stated that unless 50 more train tickets were sold the trip would have to be cancelled, but with the McGill band joining the expedition to Kingston it will still be held. These tickets, which sell regularly at $10.00 will be valid until the 31st of this month, but the Union would prefer to see the students return on the train provided for the purpose. The students will be able to attend the dance and still have an hour before the excursion train leaves.

CO-ED CLIPPINGS

By Elizabeth Sumner

Frash hazing is over for another year and Frash have now left that state where they are neither high school pupils, nor full-fledged university students. From now on they can take their places in the life of the university on an equal footing with the upperclassmen.

There is one Freshette, however, who was so busy during hazing week at R.V.C. that she did not have time to do her weekly washing. Come Saturday, and Mother came to town to visit daughter, and find out how she liked life in a women's residence. Mother took one look around the room and spied a full laundry bag reposing in the corner... needless to say Mother spent all day Saturday doing daughter's washing... something she never did at home.

Joan Shepherd Chosen Photo Club President

Joan Shepherd was unanimously elected President of the Camera Club at its first meeting on Friday, Oct. 20. Bob Jordan was named Vice President while Jim Ripley was elected to the post of Secretary-Treasurer. Henry Priestman and Jean Worth were named Dark Room Committee Chairman and Contest Chairman respectively, and John Altshuler, Publicity Manager.

President Joan Shepherd outlined some of the plans for the coming year, which will include contests, with cash prizes, tours, lectures, and social events. This year the Camera Club offers the members a new well equipped dark room located in the basement of the McGill Union. On Thursday, Oct. 28, a meeting for novices will be held in the McGill Union at 7.30 p.m.; the purpose of this meeting will be to instruct and demonstrate the principles of developing and printing.

a campaign to get signs placed in the Currie Gym showing the way to the new swimming pool. Two friends of this column—who shall remain anonymous—decided during a recent football dance to inspect the new swimming pool, which they had never seen before.

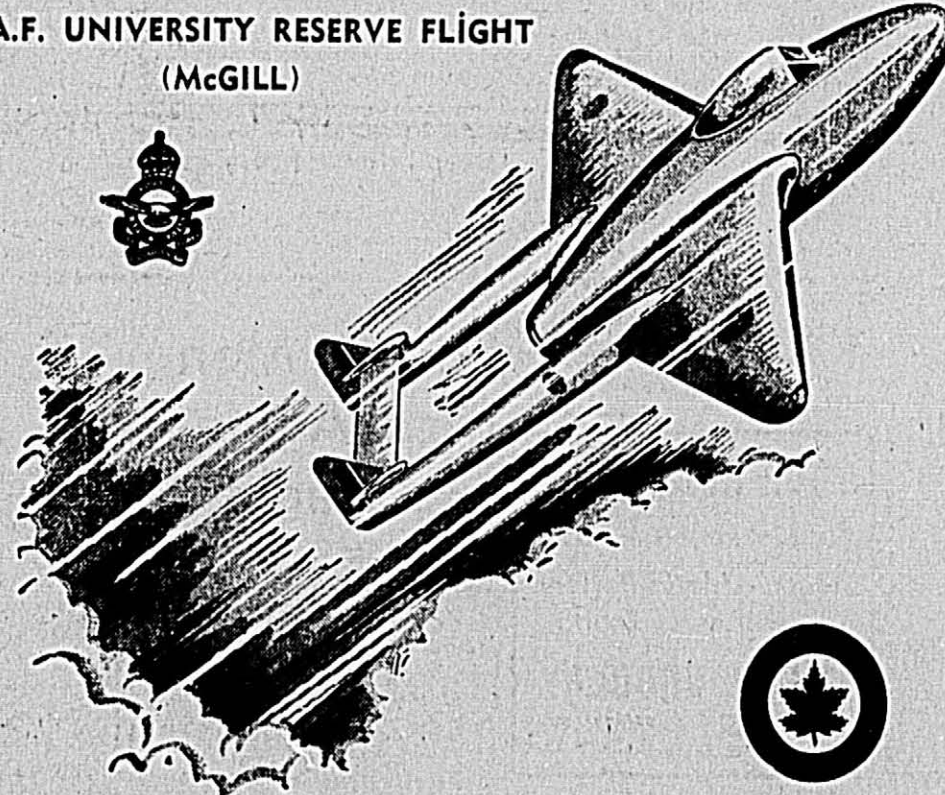

They left the gym by the east door, and started walking—in an easterly direction. This corridor soon came to a dead end, and the couple found some stairs which they descended. At the foot was a maze of incomplete squash courts. For a whole hour they wandered around the courts constantly looking for a door which would lead them to the pool. In various windows they kept seeing the reflection of a sign on Park Avenue which advertised a certain brand of spaghetti. First it would seem miles away, then very close at hand. Finally, the wanderers were found by a janitor, who showed them the pool (they were only a few feet away from it) then escorted them back to the gym.

News from R.V.C. The executive of the Women's Union is looking for a donation of packs of playing cards for the Women's Lounge in the basement of R.V.C. All donations may be left in the Women's Union Office.

Date for the Annual Fashion Show has tentatively been set for January 25. Nancy Wilson is in charge of arrangements, and it is expected that a large downtown departmental store will sponsor the show.
